Adobe Lightroom Adobe Lightroom is a free image-editing program that enables users to manage, edit, and display images and catalog them with metadata to make them searchable. It provides tools for basic image retouching and scanning, color correction, cataloging and editing, and product photo marketing. It includes a library management feature, which you can use to organize photos into folders and subfolders for efficient storage and searching. And, of course, it's got a built-in cataloging and display engine, just like all the other Adobe products do. For those of you interested in learning about Lightroom's catalog features, check out Book III Chapter 5.

The public prosecutor's office in Dijon opened a preliminary investigation into the terrorist attack in Paris that left at least one police officer dead Tuesday after four people were taken into custody over the shooting, according to media reports. France's Le Monde newspaper said that police had been tipped off that the four attackers were in Dijon, and the local prosecutor ordered a search of their apartment. The paper said the apartment was under the control of French and Belgian police since Wednesday morning. A security source, who like others in the know was not authorized to speak publicly, told The Times that the suspects are French and that this was known by authorities on Wednesday. "We are still investigating the motive and circumstances of the attack," a representative for the Dijon prosecutor's office said. At about 10 p.m., several hours after the Paris attacks, a gunman killed one police officer in the southeastern city of Dijon, southern France, local officials said. The gunman then chased down an officer who was following him as he fled, and shot the officer several times in the legs, including once in the head and once in the throat, according to reports. The gunman was then stopped in a restaurant parking lot, where he was found dead of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, police said. The French president's office said that its personnel were informed of the shooting at 10:38 p.m. and that the unidentified officer "suffered serious injuries." A statement from the president's office said, "At the moment, we don't know what happened. The security services are investigating," according to a report by Reuters. The city's prosecutor's office said that it would investigate the killing. One of the suspects, Tunisian-born Salah Abdeslam, was reportedly among those arrested. As the hunt for the Paris attackers intensifies, American officials said the situation has increased the possibility that they might attempt to attack targets in the United States. "The threat level has increased dramatically," a senior administration official told the New York Times. While "there is no specific indication" at this time to suggest a terror attack on the United States, the official added, "the threat level is being significantly raised because of what happened in France.

Q: org-mode before-save-hook title string in org-insert-heading I just started using org-mode and I'm trying to generate a headline on a new org-entry before saving. #+NAME: new_entry #+BEGIN_SRC python :results dynamic :session my_session def new_file_header(): return "This is a new test " #+END_SRC I'm using the before-save-hook to save my org-file, but I'd like org-mode to insert the message "This is a new test " just before saving. Is there a way to do this? A: Just add the text to your before-save-hook: #+NAME: new_entry #+BEGIN_SRC python :results dynamic :session my_session def new_file_header(): return "This is a new test " #+END_SRC #+BEGIN_SRC emacs-lisp (set (make-local-variable 'org-insert-heading-alist) ((my_session "new_entry". ("This is a new test")))) #+END_SRC For more info, see: Edit: For a more generic solution, you could also check the file for any known presence of the string and change it if so. (defun my-org-insert-header () "Insert `this is a new test' before `file 1.org'." (if (re-search-backward "a new test" (point-min) (line-end-position)) (progn (goto-char (match-beginning 0)) (delete-region (match-beginning 0) (match-end 0))) (progn (insert "this is a new test") (goto-char (match-beginning 0)) (delete-region (match-beginning 0
