The Selection by Gillian Flynn Description: Jia has never asked why her mother left her at a bar as a child, or why her father walked out of her life, but it was easier not to think about it. What she doesn't know is that she is different, special. And that the people who shunned her as a child have their eyes on her now – with their own plans for her. Nicholas has been waiting patiently for his chance to get away from it all. He's a con man, an elite pickpocket with a knack for making people trust him. When a pretty young woman at his new club bequeaths him a $200,000 necklace, it is his chance to strike out on his own. But Nicholas has a past and a reason to run, and the people from his childhood – someone who knows about his gift and how to use it – are close on his heels. Somehow he's going to have to outwit them before they finally catch up with him.In a typical dishwashing machine, cleansing agents such as detergent, bleach, and the like, are placed in a washing chamber, and a fresh supply of such agents is provided after a predetermined number of loads of dishes have been washed. The fresh supply of agents are automatically dispensed into the washing chamber at each cycle of operation of the machine. The dispensing of such agents into the washing chamber is often accomplished by simple gravity alone. However, due to the wide variations in the size of the washing chamber (i.e., trays) in dishwashers, it is not always possible to evenly distribute the agent into the washing chamber. Also, when there is a demand for large quantities of a particular agent, such agent tends to be unevenly distributed in the washing chamber. As a result, the washing chamber may be lightly or heavily soiled. Additionally, while there may be a large demand for a particular agent, such agent may be disposed of before all of the demand has been satisfied. For example, a large demand for agent in the washing chamber is followed by a reduced demand for the agent. Thus, a large quantity of agent is disposed of before all of the dishwashing cycle has been completed. In attempts to overcome these problems, a number of specific methods have been devised for metering a particular agent during the dishwashing cycle. One such method is disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 3,876
