www.youtube.com/watch?v=HX4DQFSLb4s My Thesis was presented to the jury. I did my best to make sure it didn't contain anything too original or anything too hackish. I was planning on making a video when I started working on this, but I felt this was a bigger task than I expected for a prologue video so I just decided to devote all my time to working on it and it turned out better this way. It was pretty hard to translate and the video was pretty hard to make, but at least I got to present my research and answer most of the questions in a video that the jury actually responded to and some of them seemed really interested in the topic and wanted to know more about it. I also attempted to present the best version of the game I can and not just what I would like to show them, so that I could share it as a more complete version with the public. This task was also really challenging. Oh well, what's the point of having a thesis that you can't present to the jury? Here it is. Please leave feedback and support as much as you can. Bilingualism in Parkinson's disease. Parkinson's disease (PD) is a common neurodegenerative disease and its quality of life is affected through the loss of balance and movement. Language is often impaired in PD and this may cause problems in communicating. The few studies that looked at this issue used unstandardized assessment measures in a few languages. To evaluate the effect of bilingualism on the quality of life in people with PD. A cross-sectional study in which 47 participants (19 bilingual and 28 monolingual) with PD were evaluated with a questionnaire on their social, physical and psychological variables, the Assessment of Quality of Life in PD, the Mini-Mental State Examination, the Unified Parkinson's Disease Rating Scale (UPDRS), the Hoehn & Yahr Scale, and a 10-item version of the Cambridge Neuropsychological Test Automated Battery (CANTABeclipse). The results were compared to the data of healthy controls matched in terms of age, sex, and socio-economic status. The healthy controls scored significantly higher on the Hoehn & Yahr scale, the Mini-Mental State Examination, and the CANTABeclipse. The UPDRS did not significantly differ between the groups. With the exception of the communication subscale of the Assessment of Quality of Life in PD, the participants with PD had lower scores than the controls. There was no correlation between the level of education of the participants and the CANTABeclipse and UPDRS scores. The participants who reported the use of a second language also had significantly lower scores on the UPDRS and CANTABeclipse. It was not possible to show a correlation between the duration of using a second language and the degree of communication impairment in PD. Given the de bff6bb2d33

Q: How to find the last value in List without loop? I have a List without duplicate values, and I want to find the last value in the list without looping, this is my code

List selected = new List();
var items = db.Tables["unit"].ToList();
selected.AddRange(items.Where(x => !x.Filter.Equals("").Contains(unitId)).Select(item => item.Unit_id.ToString()).ToList());
if (UnitID == null) { MessageBox.Show("No Unit ID is Selected",
